RESEARCH JOURNAL - CROSSWAVES

Government College Mokeri serves the higher education requirements of the students residing in the vicinity of the college, despite its rural location. Academic journals, in addition to the organisation of conferences and seminars, are essential for a higher education institution to fulfil students' aspirations for higher education. These activities facilitate research-oriented learning among students and contribute to the academic progress of faculty. The institution undertakes these initiatives in order to facilitate and promote opportunities for the faculty and postgraduate research students to enhance their knowledge. Workshops, seminars, and journals serve as forums for the dissemination of scholarly research papers, as well as the exchange and deliberation of academic ideas among faculty members and researchers. This platform facilitates an inclusive discussion among faculty and scholars from diverse cross-disciplinary fields regarding matters of shared interest, including literature, discourse, language, subalternity, nationality, evolving sensibilities, and style and content.

A scholarly journal is an essential for Research and Post Graduate departments, including the English Department at this institution. The Department of English's brought out the interdisciplinary, annual, peer-reviewed Research Journal Crosswaves (registration ongoing) with the intention of contributing to and providing opportunities for the faculty and graduate/research students to advance their knowledge. The primary objective is to furnish a forum where scholars can disseminate their research papers encompassing a wide range of interdisciplinary topics. This allows for the investigation of shared concerns such as literary works, discourse, language, subalternity, nationality, evolving sensibilities, and content. On occasion, journals publish special issues that are dedicated to a specific theme, enabling readers to stay updated on the latest developments in the field. The journal exhibits a transdisciplinary character, featuring articles from various fields that are encompassed within its scope. The issues comprise research papers that have undergone peer review by faculty and research scholars within and beyond the state, as well as in the vicinity of the college, thereby affording them essential academic recognition.

Crosswaves aims to disseminate research papers pertaining to interdisciplinary humanities studies, particularly those concerning social inclusion, gender equity, and literary studies. The journal promotes interpretive criticism and novel perspectives on emerging social, cultural, and equity concerns, in addition to scholarly articles and texts by established authors. Its objective is to foster a substantive dialogue that is pertinent to the current era. Principal Sri. Ashraf Koyilothankandiyil published/released the inaugural issue of the peer-reviewed research journal Crosswaves on 06.03.23 on behalf of the Department of English at Govt. College Mokeri. The initial issue was presented to Dr. Dinesh MP, the HoD of the Department of Economics and the Secretary of the PTA.
